GBP INTERNATIONAL ESG GROWTH MPS (SINCE INCEPTION)

Source: Morningstar; ARC Research Ltd PCI (www.suggestus.com)

- Economic activity remained fairly robust in the US but recession worries reappeared in Europe and the UK and the post-Covid rebound in China continued to disappoint. On the inflation front, underlying pressures eased further in the US and also finally started to moderate in the Eurozone and UK.
- Central banks raised interest rates again as inflation concerns persisted. The Fed and the BOE both increased rates by 0.25% over the quarter while the ECB increased them by 0.5%.
- Although markets now believe US rates have peaked, comments by the Fed that rates are set to remain higher for longer led to a marked rise in US Treasury yields. UK Gilts, by contrast, were supported by a surprise drop in inflation in August and yields rose only slightly. While Treasuries lost 2.9% over the quarter, Gilts were down only 0.6%.
- Global equities lost 2.2% over the quarter in local currency terms, although a weakening in the pound against a stronger dollar left markets up 0.9% in sterling terms. Gains in July on the back of increased hopes of a soft-landing in the US were subsequently followed by a retreat as the rise in bond yields took its toll.
- UK equities outperformed, helped by a rebound in oil prices, and returned 1.9%. Japan also fared well with a gain of 3.3% in sterling terms, as did emerging markets with a rise of 2.6% led by India. The US performed broadly in line with an increase of 1.0%, while Europe suffered from the renewed recession worries and was down 1.5%.

INVESTMENT OUTLOOK

- The Western economies could well still see a mild recession, as the effects of monetary tightening feed through, but China should continue its post-covid rebound.
- Headline inflation in the West has fallen back considerably, particularly in the US. However, core inflation is proving stickier, especially in the UK and Europe, and should remain considerably higher than the 2% targeted by central banks.
- The Fed, ECB and BOE have all now most likely finished tightening policy, although none of them looks likely to start cutting rates before next summer.
- Bond yields should finally be close to their peak and prospective returns are the highest for many years.
- Global equities face some downside risks as valuations in the US are still high and recession risks remain. Further out, however, there is scope for further gains, particularly outside the US.

INVESTMENT STRATEGY

Our investment strategy has three key components:

ASSET ALLOCATION > Focused on analysing the economic and financial environment, assessing the prospective returns and risks of each of the major asset classes, both over the short and long term.

FUND SELECTION > Our rigorous fund selection process involves assessing which funds best allow us to gain exposure to the most attractive asset classes, regions and themes.

PORTFOLIO CONSTRUCTION > These two building blocks are then combined to create portfolios which are designed to meet their specific objectives and are actively managed with regular rebalancing.

The process is run by our research and strategy team and overseen by our investment committees to ensure that the portfolios are managed in line with their objectives and risks are kept to appropriate levels.
